Resiliency and Adaptability

At the Snider Campus, we have learned that resiliency and the ability to adapt to a changing world is not something innate. We learn how to do it. Sometimes we make mistakes, but we listen to the people who have found out how to survive and live long, and thrive. We learn, by listening to the people who have found a way to adapt - the residents. The great resource within our community is the people who live here and who have seen war and sickness and upheaval. We honor them by learning from their lives. They are our treasure, and through their example we will make it through these difficult times.
