The Values of Freedom

The Snider Campus is a home based on Jewish values, but, while many of our residents are not Jewish, we believe the values of life, compassion, mercy, and respect are universal. These values unite us rather than divide us. This week, we celebrate Passover while many celebrate Easter. Both holidays are joined in the belief that a connection with a higher power liberates us from oppression and paves the journey to a better life. In these difficult times, that belief is essential for reminding us to seek out the joy in life every minute of every day.

As we celebrate the holidays this week, let us all honor and respect each other, and take pride in the fact that here, we live by the values that are proclaimed so joyously by our traditions.

"There are only two ways to live your life. One is as though nothing is a miracle. The other is as though everything is a miracle." Albert Einstein
