Where do we find our inspiration?

Someone said, “May the 4th be with you”. Of course, I knew the reference to the Star Wars movies and laughed at the rather corny pun. But there is something very true and powerful in the recognition that our inspiration can come from both the most lofty, and the simplest sources. Some may look down on popular culture, question the motives behind current trends, and cast aside its superficiality. The reality remains that the slogans and aphorisms that reach us through the media and advertising have the power to impact our behavior. We need not be so arrogant as to ignore the simple and well-worn phrases regardless of their truth.

So, for today, a simple quote from Obi Wan Kenobi: “Don’t give in to hate. That leads to the Dark Side.”
– The Empire Strikes Back Have a wonderful, week of peace and joy, and laughter.
